

2018 ACP Michigan Conference: Advancing Advance Care Planning PACE Pre-Conference Information

PACE Pre-Conference

Advance care planning (ACP) is a process of communication that helps individuals understanding their choices for future healthcare; reflect on personal goals, values, and beliefs; and talk to providers and loved ones. This process is driven by a conversation(s) in which individuals understand their healthcare conditions and possible future complications and choices, allows individuals to reason and reflect on what is best, and discuss these choices and plans.

Many believe that advance care planning allows healthcare organizations to provide the right care, in the right place, at the right time. Yet developing a system of advance care planning that meets the patient's needs, and drives healthcare decision-making and development of treatment plan, can be challenging. While ACP has been shown to improve quality of care for our patients, decrease moral distress experienced by staff, and decrease the costs of care at the end-of-life; many organizations have not implemented a comprehensive ACP program.

The PACE pre-conference explores the benefits and challenges to implementing comprehensive advance care planning. Participants will:

- Learn what ACP is and how this approach is different than current practice
- Understand why PACE is uniquely positioned to do ACP well
- Learn how experienced PACE program has integrated ACP process that drive care planning
- Participate in group discussions with colleagues from PACE organizations across Michigan
- Identify gaps in own organizations ACP processes
- Explore opportunities to standard ACP implementation for PACE organizations in Michigan
- Network with your Michigan PACE community
